

MORNING APPEAL

SATURDAY.....JANUARY 20

L. P. Fisher, newspapers advertising agents, 21 Merchants' Exchange, San Francisco, is our authorized agent. This paper is kept on file in his office.

FREE TRADE SLANDERS.

No one can pick up a Democratic newspaper and see any reference to the tariff without noting the evident disposition on the part of editors to convince the American people that they not only are wronged by the action of the law, but that in a thousand cases they are wronged in the quality of the goods supplied them by American manufacturers. The struggle is made all along the line for instance to show that English woolen goods, the ordinary goods that the ordinary man wears, are superior to the American goods, and editors will ramble through column after column to show that this must be so, inasmuch as the English have the pick of all the wools of the world. Again, the impression is perpetually held out that American manufacturers, being innately dishonest, use vast amounts of shoddy, and no possible reference is made to English shoddy. Now the fact is that the American woolen cloths exhibited at the World's Fair were equal to the very best that were brought across the sea, and they averaged higher than any foreign exhibit. Then again, when it comes to shoddy, the English to use two pounds of it to one in America. Finally, shoddy is of various grades, and according to the best expert that we know of, it is impossible to make perfect woolen goods for all uses without the use of shoddy. About a year ago we gave a statement made by the most expert judge of those things in this region, a gentleman who all his life has been engaged in the business and knows every manufacturer in Great Britain, wherein he explained that the trouble with the Provo mills was that they refused to use any shoddy and the result was that their clothing was out of shape in a week. Just now there is an agitation all over this country about throwing the tariff from wool, and there is a struggle on the part of every Democratic orator and every Democratic newspaper to convince the wool raisers and the country that, by throwing that tariff off, they will have a superior article of woolen goods at English prices in this country. The truth is, as we have a dozen times shown, that with wool placed on the free list, while the effect will be to ruin the sheep industry in very many parts of this country, in all places where land is valuable, the striking down of that tariff cannot in itself make a difference to exceed $1.50 on a suit of clothes. If, as these papers claim, the tariff is not to be reduced on woolsens, but only on the raw material, the difference in cost cannot exceed $1.50 a suit. And that is the statesmanship of the President of the United States and the majority of Congressmen. And newspapers in the wool-raising regions endorse it, and by more crooks and turns and twists than ever a serpent made in climbing upon a height that was covered by a thicket, they finally reach the conclusion that it will be best, that it will increase manufacturing in this country, and will finally give a better price for wool itself. There is not one of them that believes any such thing. The object is to kill the tariff, and the final object, while many men do not believe it, is to destroy manufacturing in this country. It is the old spirit that started in the brain of John C. Calhoun, which found its first potential expression in the Constitution of the Confederate States, and which now is trying to be ingrafted in the statutes of the United States.—Salt Lake Tribune.

All the goldbug schemes are to avoid coining silver. If silver can be coined into money and made to serve as such all over this great republic, why is it not better to make money of the metal than of paper? We have heard a good deal about sound hard money from the goldbugs and now their leaders are advancing schemes to expend paper money. If the credit of the government will sustain silver, for silver has great value, even in its uncoined state, all over the world.—Vickburg Herald.
